DETAILED ACTION

Notice of Amendment

In response to the arguments filed on May 22, 2007, the current rejections of the claims are withdrawn. The following new grounds of rejection are set forth:

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1-5, 9, 12-13, 15-17 and 21 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by U.S. Patent No. 5,669,389 to Rotteveel et al.

In regard to claims 1, 9, 15 and 21, Rotteveel et al. disclose an endoscopic imaging apparatus comprising: an endoscope including a distal end; at least one ultrasound transducer 11 contained within said distal end; and an outer protective shell 13 directly covering said distal end and fabricated from an electrically insulating material having a thermal conductance greater than 1 W/M-°K overlaying at least a portion of said distal end (see Figs 7-8 and Col. 5, Line 30 – Col. 6, Line 26). In the broadest interpretation of the claim, the outer protective shell consists of elements 81, 82 and 87 and 85 of Rotteveel et al. and thus is fabricated with elements having an overall thermal conductivity of greater than 1 W/M-°K.

In regard to claim 2, Rotteveel et al. disclose an endoscopic imaging apparatus further comprising: controls for controlling the movement of the distal end; a signal processor for processing received signals from said at least one ultrasound transducer; and means for energizing the at least one ultrasonic transducer (see Figs. 1-2).

In regard to claim 3, Keast et al. disclose an endoscopic imaging apparatus, wherein said covering is in thermal contact with the at least one ultrasound transducer (see Figs. 7-8).

In regard to claims 4-5, 12-13 and 16-17, Keast et al. disclose an endoscopic imaging apparatus, wherein said material is non-toxic (see Col. 1, Lines 10-67).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 6-8, 10-11, 14 and 18-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over U.S. Patent No. 5,669,389 to Rotteveel et al. in view of U.S. Patent No. 5,738,100 to Yagami et al.

In regard to claims 6-8, 10-11, 14 and 18-20, Rotteveel et al. disclose an endoscopic imaging apparatus comprising: an endoscope including a distal end; at least one ultrasound transducer 11 contained within said distal end; and an outer protective shell 13 directly covering said distal end and fabricated from an electrically insulating material having a thermal conductance greater than 1 W/M-°K overlaying at least a portion of said distal end (see Figs 7-8 and Col. 5, Line 30 – Col. 6, Line 26). Rotteveel et al. is silent with respect to the insulating material consisting of an alumina-based ceramic. Yagami et al. teach of an analogous apparatus having an ultrasound transducer 11 with a covering fabricated from an electrically insulating material 27 made from an a material such as alumina (see Fig. 1 and Col. 5, Lines 15-25). The ceramic material would inherently be electrically insulating and have a thermal conductance greater than 1 W/M-OK, or approximately 30 W/M-OK, as Yagami et al. disclose the housing to be preferably made of a ceramic material such as alumina (as also noted by applicant at page 4 of the specification). It would have been obvious to one skilled in the art at the time the invention was made to fabricate the outer shell in the apparatus of Rotteveel et al. from an alumina-based ceramic in order to provide greater thermal conductance to the lens and thus more readily dissipate heat created by the ultrasound transducer as taught by Yagami et al.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1-21 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.
